

Photo: iStock

SILENT FOREST

What can you do for songbirds?

By speaking of the fate of Asian songbirds at home or at school, more and more people notice the extinction of these beautiful singers. Let us work together for bringing back the songbirds songs into Asian forests.

Collect money

There are many great ideas on how to raise funds for songbirds to support projects. You can make a songcontest and take attendance fee or collect donations at a karaoke event. But also crafting or baking events are good ways to make money.

Go birding

We all like to hear the birdsongs in the nature. But the number of our native songbirds is declining sharply. Do you know the names of indigenous birds? Can you distinguish the songs of the blackbird and chaffinch? With mobile apps you can start learning about the birds, or you can go out with a book and binoculars the old fashioned way. Often bird migrations are offered by local conservation associations or bird clubs. By the way, watching birds is also a great change of pace on holidays.

Collect binoculars

We want to inspire the people of Asia for "birding". Well guided bird migrations are in vogue and tourist pay for them – a good possibility to earn money. In order to advertise the "birding" we want to provide discarded binoculars. Help us to collect binoculars. Give your old binoculars at the zoo or organize a binocular collection at school or at your club.

Photo: iStock

Photo: Kölner Zoo

TRAFFIC
the wildlife trade monitoring network

SSC
Species Survival Commission

Asian Songbird
Trade SG

www.silentforest.eu

